

workshops overview

"Dan has provided a number of excellent courses here and I have been delighted by the quality and effectiveness of each of them. He is very professional in his approach in terms of having clear aims and objectives, thorough in preparation, very skilled delivery and ensuring student feedback at the end of the course or session. He has excellent communication and people skills and a warm, sensitive approach to individuals."

Leighton Buzzard Theatre, UK

Dan has a flair for designing and delivering workshops that develop confidence, skill and awareness for participants of all levels of ability and virtually any genre or style of music.

Dan's students leave with a deeper understanding of music, confidence in their newly developed skills and often with new friends into the bargain. Dan loves teaching and it shows in his enthusiasm and the outstanding results he achieves.

"It has been a very rare and special weekend. The structure and delivery of the course allowed such growth in the group: a spirit of warmth and fun which I have not experienced ever before. I will recommend the course to others and will cherish the memory I take with me."

voice and performance skills workshops

'Everyone can sing' - a voice workshop

This enjoyable and highly participatory course is designed to help students find their own voice and to learn how to project it with ease and confidence.

Participants may be new to singing or even believe that they can't, or they might be established singers of any genre who wish to develop greater confidence and improve their presentation.

In a fun and supportive atmosphere, students have the opportunity to experiment with vocal sounds and are shown the open-throated calling technique used by most styles of professional singers. Once learned, this calling sound is powerful and effortless.

By projecting their voice and singing from the heart, students find the real beauty of their song and learn how to move their audience.

performance skills workshop

Designed to help participants to conquer stage fright and put charisma into their performance, this workshop is for performers of all levels of ability, from those with severe stage-fright to seasoned professionals.

In a supportive atmosphere, students focus on their material and the interaction with their audience. They either learn to cope with their nerves, or completely lose them. They develop stage-presence and learn how to move their audience.
